PROSPECTUS.
The land in which lies the coal proposed to be worked under the above-named company.

county of Northumberland, near Hexham. It comprises 300 acres, held from the Government under the new L. Bill, on a lease of fourteen years, at 6s. per acre per annum renewable for fourteen years more, at the same rate on payment of a fine of £2 10s. per acre; or it may be purchased at the full value of the land, at the rate of £1 per acre on payment of the purchase money. About 100 acres of the adjoining land has also been leased for a term of fourteen years, at a small lordship.

The coal on the land lies in two seams, one at a depth of 60 feet, 5 feet 3 inches thick, the other at a depth of 110 feet, 3 feet thick. The upper seam contains a bright black coal of the quality of the Walmsley Company, and is of excellent quality throughout. The lower seam contains a first-class steam coal. This seam consists of 34 feet of coal of which 14 feet at the top is inferior and available only

The place is most favourably situated for conveying coal to market. The mouth of the proposed pit is about 1600 yds. from the Great Northern Railway, and requires—exclusive of the curves and junctions for all sidings—a branch line of about 2000 yards in length. The falls in a gentle slope down from the pit to the railway with no engineering difficulties at all to be overcome. To

The owner of the lease, Mr. James Donaldson, recd. £8000 for it, but is so confident of the success of the undertaking, that he is willing to receive the whole amount of the lease, say 16600 shares of £5 each. He is residing on the wharf, and has a large stock of goods, and will not nominal rate until the mine commences delivery. The cost of the line and machinery, plant, &c., has been carefully estimated, and will amount to about £3000. The preliminary expenses of deed of settlement, acts of incorporation, and redemption of the lease, will amount to about £1500. This will leave a margin of about £7000 on the capital of £25,000 available for further outlay.

A cut of 21 per share will be made on allotment, and the remainder be called up as the works progress, in instalments of 11 each.

It is estimated that a delivery of only 30,000 tons of per annum (the local consumption being about 20,000 tons per annum), at 12s. per ton, will give a net profit of £40,000 a year, and a dividend of 10s. per share to the shareholders. This would pay a dividend of fifty per cent per annum on the full amount of £25,000; and there is reason to doubt, that the expanding coal trade of the country will not be long enough to support these new works now producing.

It is proposed to sink a shaft in the first instance, so that the shareholders may stay their hands if the Gentlemen,—I have to request that you will allot Shares in the Alnwick Coal Mining Company, and I hereby agree to accept the same or any less number that may be allotted to me, to pay the calls as specified in the Prospectus, and to sign the Deed of Settlement when requested to do so.

COURT OF VICED-ADMIRALTY.
Before his Honor B. T. Milford, Esq., Commissioner.
JUDGE AND OTHERS V. THE SHIP GUARDIAN OF KING
His Honor gave judgment in this case as follows:
There is a certain ship named "The Guardian," age only Sir J. Nicholl, in the care of the CH. Hogg, first, says that "the ingredients of salvage are, first, straits, perils or the involvement of goods in maritime adventures, secondly, the intervention of man's own lives to save their fellow creatures, and to recover property of their fellow subjects; lastly, the recovery whether it were in imminent peril and of some certain value, if not at the time rescued and preserved; thirdly, the labour and skill which the salvors incur and display in the time occupied; lastly, the value." By the way, the value of the property saved at the place to which it is taken and placed on shore.

In the present case, the Queen of England, a 1196 tons burden, valued by the master before she was wrecked at £120,000, was on the 2nd of May, 1860, struck on the reef of rocks just outside the harbour of Newcastle about one o'clock on the morning of the 2nd of May last, and was adviced: to her getting off the rocks, but there was little of it; the tide was rising. She sent up two which, and the pilot boat, and crew went on board. Information of the accident was given to the master of the tug Lowestoft, of sixty or seventy ton power, with including the master, of nine men, and she got up here as quickly as possible and went to the place where the tug after the arrival, the Tamar, started the boat of 10 or 12 ton power, the Rye, and the steam-tug boat of 45-horse power with a crew of men (the last belonging to the same owner as the steamer), came up to the ship. The Lowestoft got a harbor pilot by means of a rope passed between her and a barge of England. The Tamar anchored, and a tugboat of 10 or 12 ton power, the Rye, was present. It is a question for the consideration of the Court whether the services were refused. However, she was not refused services.

herself to the bow of the Lowestoft before the Tamar. Tam-prepared to act, and after the Tamar did act. Tamtug-boats, in a quarter of an hour to an hour, according to the different witness, succeeded in getting the Queen on shore.
The boats reached the shore. Rapidly the boats were Lowestoft and Tamar took the ship into the harbor, and she was anchored. Shortly after this was found, and she leaked so much as to render it necessary to that she should be run on shore, which was accomplished by the intervention of the Rapid in the forenoon of the day. She lay, when so run on shore, with her bow upward, and her bowsprit in the water, so as to rise and keep steady, some extent, in the water, and fall and swing, some extent, in the air, and side. It appears that by the action of the rocks, water ran on them, a great part of her keel was knocked out, and a great part of the copper removed from the forepart and a hole made in her bottom. There is a declaration in a testimony of witnesses vision that she had the three children the same day, and that she was of a very trifling extent. This all occurred on the 19th of May; the action for the present complaint was entered on the 19th; the ship was arrested on the 21st, yet, by some means, the vessel was released on the 25th, and on the 16th of the month, without the sanction of the Court, to the former master and part Mr Nolan, for the sum of £255. The Court, of course, cannot recognise this sale, and I must consider the vessel as arrested on the 21st of March, and the sale, if any, as null and void, and the vessel answerable for the same but lost made without the sanction of the Court. It had been advertised for sale but was postponed till the 19th. During these several

The salvage service, of course, terminated when the case to anchor within the harbour—the steam-tug—left the harbour. The court then took place, as indicating what her value was when she was rescued the dangerous position in which she was.

Having reference to the four ingredients of the service rendered in this case—first, the persons who rendered the service; secondly, the nature of the service; thirdly, the nature of the risk; and fourthly, the consideration, either to damnum, periculum, or their vessels. Secondly, the labour and skill used to great—the two vessels, the Lowestoft and the Rapid not so long. There was, indeed, the knowledge of the locality possessed by the masters of the steamship, which may be considered as skill, and there was carrying out of what they were engaged in doing in the manner of the master of the vessel, and the services when informed of the accident having had to the ship. Thirdly, the danger and distress of the were very considerable; indeed, it is more likely that ship would have been gone from the route at all if it had not been for the assistance afforded by the steam tug. The wind somewhat freshened, and was blowing so as to prevent her getting off, and the tide was rising, so that, some assistance had been afforded, she would have been driven back.

not have injured her; or she might have been removed from the ship after the sale, and not have been allowed to stay on for seventeen days in that deteriorating position.

For £2925 notwithstanding all this, and notwithstanding the fact that she was sold by the Admiralty in 1896, and that the settlement which stated that she had seventeen or eight feet of water in her. The master, Mr. Nolan, says that when brought into the harbour she was worth £3500 or £4000, and I will bring to tale this as her value, though she had been some months before perhaps £3000 or £10,000 more.

Her value then being taken at £3500, what was the value of the salvage services? I have been referred to various cases, not perhaps as precedents, but as affording illustrations.

sent case: I have read most of them. In some the value saved has been allowed, in others not more than a trifle above what might be charged for towage; and in a few cases somewhat similar to the present, the amount saved has been more than allowed. I have seen 2000 in Merchant, 3 Hagg, 204; the Bwell Grove, 3 209; the Nicholas Witzon, 3 Hagg, 309; the Isiah Hagg, 427; the Rajastan, 1 Swasey, 171. It is remembered, in fixing the amount of salvage in this case, that the vessel was engaged in coastwise navigation services here is greater than in England.

The claim in this suit is for £2500, not that the complainants could mean that they would not take less than this, for it was stated by counsel, though not taken either on the supposition of preventing the purchases from not being paid out of Court (though it is never was, in Court), or merely as at common law a large sum of money was paid out of Court, and the claimant is certain to exceed any damages he can become. Further, this is a claim put in for the steam-tugs, the Lovestoft and the Rapid, leaving Tamar to make such claim as she might think fit.

The first consideration in arriving at the remuneration proper to be given to the complainants is, what amount which ought to be allowed for the service done by all the three steam vessels, the Peter T. Robertson, ledger keeper of the Bank of New South Wales, deposed: Oliver, who was manager, and who was a partner in the bank, told me in the bank; I received the sum of £1005 in the Post Office on the 28th June, but I do not know whether it was for the purpose of the bank or not. Mr. Oliver's hands, or signature, were on the bank note, and I know that he was not permitted to do so without his own signature. Mr. Oliver never complained to me of having missed any of his money, and I know nothing of any deficiency of his cash; I know nothing of any other person who had access to the bank.

Crow—examined: I remember Mr. Green being sent on his way to Orange; you were sitting at a table in the bank at that time, and I have seen you.

George Cochran, cashier at the Bathurst branch of the Bank of New South Wales, deposed: I am accountant about three months; Mr. Oliver was manager of the bank, and I was his assistant; the custody of the current cash; there was also a treasurer, which could only be drawn out by or in the name of the manager and a director, or his partner; I received the sum of £1005 in the bank on the 27th of June, in either £1005 or £990 in notes, or £27 13s. 11d. in cash. Oliver has not credit for a settlement of £1005 or £990 in the bank.

Defendant, on being asked the usual question, to make any statement in reply to the case, said:

Five persons were arraigned for drunkenness, and were discharged; another, found guilty of conduct while drunk, was sentenced to pay the fine of ten dollars, with costs.

Margaret Gore, summarily convicted of having two dress-pieces of the value of $75. 64., from W. J. Tiffin, George-street, was sentenced to perform three calendar months.

George Robert McIntire, seven years of age, guilty of stealing three shillings from the till of a named Walsh, at Bedford, was ordered to be detained in the workhouse until the next session of the court.

John Williams and James Robertson, found guilty of attempting to pass pocketed Pitt-street, were sentenced to be imprisoned and kept to hard three calendar months.

Ann Bolton, convicted of having stolen a copy of James Wright, was sentenced to be in the stocks for three calendar months.

Selma Davis and Ann Robinson, for having in obscene language, were fined 20s. each, the latter being three days' imprisonment.

Winifred Bragg and Mary Anderson, noted were sent together to Darlinghurst for three sessions.

James Kiddle, found guilty on the prosecution of sergeant Ryeland, of being the keeper of a ferry was sentenced to pay 20s. penalty, with 6d for costs.

THE INSPECTION OF THE HUNTER DISTRICT.

ON Saturday afternoon the Volunteer Hunter district were inspected by the Inspector, Lieutenant-Colonel Hamilton, in the large hall at the rear of the Black Horse Inn, East Malvern. The weather was remarkably fine—cool enough to tempt the Volunteers to take pleasure in their exercises, and enough to prevent the assembling of a large number of spectators. The ground was well adapted for the affording abundant space for the operations of the teers, and plenty of standing room for the lookers-on numbered probably some two thousand. The arrive on the ground were the Newcastle Rifles with two guns, and the Newcastle Rifles—the former some twenty-nine, the latter fifty-one (a large number), and the Newcastle Artillery. The Newcastle Land and Morpeth Company entered the field, nearly forty; and lastly came the West Maitland Company some sixty in number. Thus the total force on the morning of about 180, but including the Newcastle Artillery, the Newcastle Rifle Brigade, the Newcastle Land and Morpeth Company, the Newcastle Artillery on the Newcastle Rifle next, then the Maitland and Company, and the West Maitland Company arrived under the command of the Brigade-Adjutant.

He commended and stimulated their defects to the want of frequent opportunities of assembling and exercising in numbers. He, however, expressed also disapproval at not meeting a larger muster, and intimated his intention of visiting the establishment in the district, with the view of seeing them to allow those in their employ half-a-day at least in every month, in order that they might parade. At its termination the chairman, on behalf of those present, thanked the reverend gentleman for the interesting reading he had given them.

SUICIDE DEATH.—On Monday night, a man named Daniel Baker, aged seventy-six years, who made his living by collecting and selling empty bottles, was taken to the Infirmary, having been seized in the street with violent pains in the abdomen. When received into the hospital, he was quite conscious, but almost moribund, and died about two o'clock in the morning. The case having been reported to the coroner, an inquest has been ordered, and will be held to-morrow.

WESLEYAN METHODIST MEETING.—Last night, a public meeting was held in the Wesleyan Chapel, Chippendale, in connection with the church extension scheme of that communion. The hon. A. McArthur, M.I.C., in the chair. There was a numerous attendance. Addresses in furtherance of the objects of the meeting were delivered by the Rev. J. A. Manton, Rev. H. Biscoe, Rev. J. Worrie, Rev. W. Carr,

SUDDEN CONVERSION OF THE HON. MEMBER FOR NEW ENGLAND.—Mr. Robert Forster, M.L.A., has astonished both those who voted for his election for New England and those who voted against him. According to the Herald, he stated in the Assembly, on Thursday week, that he had been left an that the question of "State-aid" to recognize the "open one between him and his constituents, and followed with a speech in favour of State-aid. We conceive it is a matter of easy proof that at Mr. Forster's election he did not leave the question open, as he is represented to say, but that, on the contrary, he at that time spoke as strongly against State-aid as he now appears to be in love with it. — Arundale Express of Saturday.

NEW CALEDONIA.

If A. B. will take the trouble to call upon Mr. Green, he will have no doubt that Mr. G. will inform him of the value of a word which he has said as to the mast and rail. I am of Mr. Green's opinion that in the best of that description, they are a useless incumbrance. I would see, by the conclusion of A. B.'s letter, that he has some interest in Beeching's lifeboat at the Glads; but I have no objection to the lifeboat in question. I am not in a position to say anything about it.

I may as well state, in conclusion, that I have not the slightest interest in Mr. George Green's success or defeat, except the wish to benefit the community at large. I am of Mr. George Green's at the Paragon Hotel, where I went to see him, and he has not obtained the working of it.

Looking for the intrusion.

I am, Sir, your obedient fish.

DIPLOMATIC STATE OF THE ROAD.—On this topic the Western Examiner on Saturday remarks—After all the news has been said and written about the roads—notwithstanding

The favourable weather of the summer months, and the fact that the ordinary supply by Parliament last session—the roads between Orange and Forbes are in a deplorable state. We have heard and seen the material are the roads in question composed), has become extremely spongy and boggy. The traffic, since the local discovery on the Lachlan, has been very large, considerably increased, and the heavy-laden teams with supplies for the district are often delayed. As a natural consequence, communication with Forbes is almost impracticable, or, at best, very impracticable at all, only at a greatly increased cost. The carrying of carriages, a corresponding sacrifice of horse-flesh, or, if Mr. Arnold, or Mr. Cooper could only hear and see what we have heard and seen during the past fortnight, it

A REMEDY FOR LOCKJAW.—The following remarkable case of the cure of lockjaw is related by the Italian Medical Gazette of Milan. A hairdresser of that city recently received a cut with a scythe on heard about the beginning of March, 1961; he was awakened by a low humming buzz, on arising from his bed, he felt a sharp difficulty in breathing, he was unable to stretch out, and he was unable to raise his right hip and thigh; on the following days three physicians came on going to examine him, but commenced again as soon as he rose and exposed himself to the open air. On the 19th of April the symptoms became more intense; he was taken to the hospital for the treatment of a spasmodic contraction of the muscles of the lower extremities; in those of the neck were observed; the left hand experienced a contraction every time he was taken from under the bed-clothes, and the right hand continued; the pulse was regular, the temperature normal, the blood pressure normal.

to be taken in the course of twenty-four hours. The symptoms of lockjaw having nearly completely disappeared, the dose was reduced to eight grains a day; later the patient left the hospital in perfect health. Another case is related as having occurred at Venice where a young girl of sixteen received a slight wound on the wrist, which, appearing very insignificant, was neglected. Symptoms of lockjaw appeared on the following day, and were successfully treated by twenty-four grains of anacardolite in strong laurel-water, a tablespoonful being administered every hour. The of acconite was afterwards raised to thirty-six grains and in the course of two days the patient was cured.
